COLUMNS, ROWS.

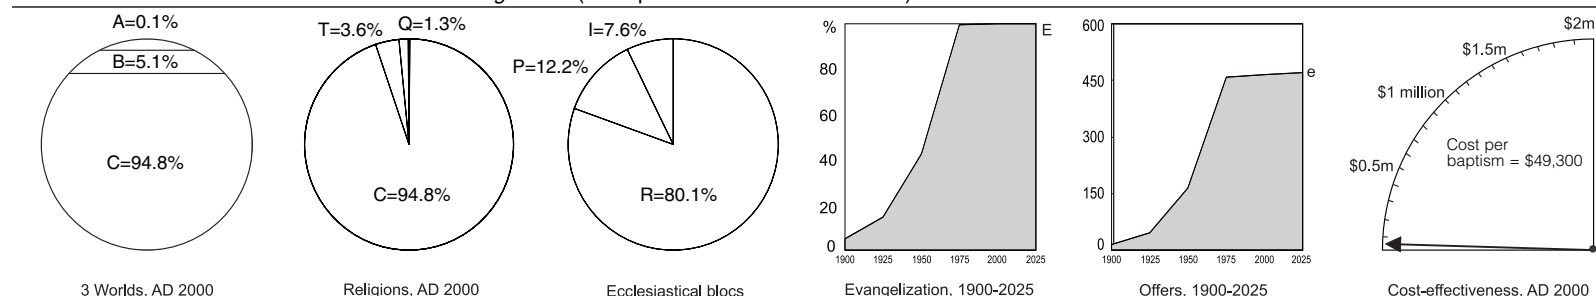

For meanings and definitions, see Codebook (Part 3). Note that, by definition, total 'Christians' = professing + crypto-Christians, which also = affiliated + unaffiliated Christians, and also = Great Commission Christians + latent Christians. Percentages may not always total exactly, due to rounding.

NOTES ON RELIGIONS

ETHNORELIGIONISTS. By 1995, 20% or less of most tribal groups followed traditional religions.

Great Commission Instrument Panel: status of Bougainville (for explanation see start of Part 4)

Country status. Bougainville is the largest of the volcanic islands in the Solomon Islands in the South Pacific Ocean. In 1989 Melanesian nationalists declared independence and guerilla warfare since then has closed down the country's copper and gold mines.

HUMAN LIFE AND LIBERTY

Human rights and freedoms. Part of the national territory of Papua New Guinea, Bougainville has been for some years the scene of protracted fighting between government troops and secessionists led by the Bougainville Revolutionary Army (BRA). Both sides are responsible for violations of human rights of both civilians and combatants. The BRA, which controls parts of the island, has alleged that government troops engage in brutal executions of its leaders to strike terror into the people. Government has only limited access to BRA-controlled areas.

NON-CHRISTIAN RELIGIONS

Traditional religions continue to exert an influence in the Northern Solomons (Bougainville) as in the Solomon Islands and Papua New Guinea. As with the other areas, non-Christian cargo cults have also developed and played an important role in the islands; there have been 4 on Bougainville island and 5 on Buka.

CHRISTIANITY

CATHOLIC CHURCH. Catholicism has been represented in the Northern Solomons since the year 1900 and is now by far the principal religion of the territory. The diocese of Bougainville which continues to form part of the archdiocese of Rabaul in Papua New Guinea is at present served by 5 national and 34 expatriate priests, as well as brothers and sisters who are also predominantly expatriate.

The Holy See has no diplomatic relations with Bougainville in AD 2000.

PROTESTANT CHURCHES. Two Protestant churches are active. The United Church has its centre in Papua New Guinea and traces its origin to both New Zealand Methodists and native Christians from other Pacific islands. Tongan and Fijian missionaries are still at work there, although the church is controlled by local personnel. The other Protestants are Seventh-day Adventists, a more recent arrival (1929) but still with substantial membership.

OTHER CHURCHES. The Hahalis Welfare Society is a syncretistic sect formed among Catholic and Methodist Buka villagers in 1957, with a mixture of Christian elements combined with traditional and cargo cult emphases. Friday Religion is an ex-Catholic movement. There is also a small community of Jehovah's Witnesses.

CHURCH AND STATE

The Northern Solomons is a secular territory strongly influenced by Christianity, especially Catholicism. The Catholic Church and its bishops are known to have played a significant role in the move towards secession and the declaration in 1975 of independence for the Northern Solomons from Papua New Guinea.

INTERDENOMINATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

The Bougainville Inter-Church Council (BICC), which had formerly been the Kieta Inter-Church Council, has 2 members, the Catholic and United Churches. The BICC is affiliated with the Melanesian Council of Churches with its headquarters in Port Moresby, Papua New Guinea.

FUTURE TRENDS AND PROSPECTS

Christianity will likely hover around 95% of the population for the next thirty years as losses by tribal religionists to Christianity are made up by losses of Christianity to the nonreligious.

After 2025, the nonreligious are expected to continue to grow with many defections from Christianity. By AD 2050 it is possible that Christians will represent less than 90% of the population.
